

This image is a vertical, high-contrast, black and white scan of a textured surface, likely a book cover or endpaper. The left side is predominantly white with a fine, grainy texture. A dark, irregular vertical band runs down the right side, containing a thin, dark, curved line that resembles a scratch or a small mark. The overall appearance is that of a heavily degraded or high-contrast processed photograph.

IMPORTANCE OF SPEED.

A GREAT FACTOR IN EVERY DAY LIFE.

In these days of rapid progress, one of the most important factors in business and science; in transportation; in sports and in fact almost everything is speed.

Speed is also an important factor in the curative powers of medicine, and it has been proven by an avalanche of testimonials that the greatest remedy for speed and rapidity in relieving and curing diseases of the kidneys and bladder, blood, liver, rheumatism, dyspepsia and chronic constipation, is DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY.

The speed of this wonderful discovery for diseases of the kidneys and bladder is not so rapid as to injure and interfere with the other healthy organs of the body; but rather of a gradual uniform speed, consistent with the best results.

If your back pains you; if your urine, after you have deposited some in a glass, and let it stand for 24 hours, has a smoky, milky appearance; if you have a frequent desire to urinate during the night and scalding pains accompany its passage, your kidneys and bladder require instant treatment, by taking Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy.

The startling results of this renowned remedy, in relieving and curing diseases of the kidneys and bladder have amazed the whole medical world.

Druggists sell it in New 50 Cent Size and the regular $1.00 size bottles.

Just Like a Woman.

Written for the Advertiser.

Just like a woman,
I have often thought I should like to tend bar in the business office of a newspaper.

A man in that position gets so much general information without having to go after it. For instance:

A disgusted looking woman entered a newspaper business office, one afternoon, and said to the engaging young man who offered her services:

"Will you be kind enough to change the address of our paper?"

"With pleasure," the young man answered, pointing his pencil above a pad.

"Thank you," she said, and turned to sweep out.

"Pardon me," he called after her, "you forgot to give me your address."

"She came back to the counter with a sort of now-look-here-young-man-I-won't stand-any-nonsense expression on her face.

"What did you say?" she asked.

"You did not give me the address."

"Oh! You want to know where to send the paper? Yes, yes, of course, I didn't understand you at first. You see I am not accustomed to doing business."

My husband always attends to such things, but he is hanging the pictures in the new house this afternoon and could not come to town, so as I was coming in to do a little shopping he asked me to attend to this."

"Yes'm." The young man resumed his waiting attitude.

"It will come to us all right now, will it?"

"With pleasure, turning to go.

"You haven't given me the address, yet," he answered, with deferential inflection.

"Haven't I? Why I thought I did. Are you sure?"

"I didn't hear it, if you did."

"I certainly thought I did. Maybe I didn't, though. You see, all the storekeepers out in our town know me so well that I never have to tell them who I am or where to send things. I suppose it will be different in the new place. I hardly know a soul in town. I didn't want to move there, but my husband wanted to, and so I yielded. And besides they say that the schools are much better than they were at the old place. But I did hate to move, I was so attached to the old house. It seemed like home."

"But there!" She looked around at the people who were waiting to do business at the counter. "I'm afraid I've detained you too long. Good day."

"Will you kindly give me your name?" The young man maintained a serene exterior, but down in the depths he was saying things that are never wrought into evergreen mottoes on the Sunday school walls at Christmas tide.

"I declare!" she said. "How stupid I am! Why, of course."

She gave him the paper and new address.

"Where has the paper been going?"

She looked a little surprised that he should ask such a question.

"Why," said she, "it has been coming to the old place. Oh, by the way, I almost forgot. My husband wanted me to get a copy of last evening's paper. We moved yesterday, before it came to the old place, and, of course, it hadn't got started to coming to the new place, yet."

"What town was the old place in?"

"Why, didn't I tell you? That's funny."

She gave the old address, folded the paper he gave her, put it in her shopping bag and went out.

The momentous transaction had been carried to successful issue.

REMEDY FOR HAY FEVER.

After Trying Other Treatment Hyomei was Used With Perfect Success.

Prior to the discovery of Hyomei, the only advice a physician could give to a hay fever patient was to get away from home but now any one who expects to escape, can, if Hyomei is used, stay at home without fear of the annual attack of sneezing, watery eyes, and other discomfort.

J. F. Forbes, a well known western railroad man, whose home is in McCook, Neb., writes, "I have never had relief from my remedy for hay fever, even temporarily, until I discovered the merits of Hyomei. I will always recommend it whenever occasion requires."

There is no offensive odor, and it is a reliable remedy for the cure of all diseases of the respiratory organs and is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, so that the air taken into the throat and lungs is like that of the White Mountains or other health resorts where hay fever is unknown.

Frank Kimball, who has the local agency for Hyomei, advises all who are subject to hay fever to begin its use two or three weeks before the time of the annual appearance of this disease and thus prevent the attack. If, however, Hyomei is not used until the sneezing and other disagreeable symptoms have shown themselves, it is necessary to use the treatment more frequently, at least half a dozen times daily, and Hyomei Balm should be rubbed into the nostrils both morning and night.

The fact that Frank Kimball agrees to refund the money to any hay fever sufferer who uses Hyomei without success, should inspire confidence in its power to effect a cure.

A Norway Girl Abroad.

Mrs. Adelaide E. Pearson, Mrs. Betsey P. French's daughter of North Norway, is enjoying a trip abroad and writes the following interesting letter to her home friends at Jamaica Plains, Mass. This was recently published in the "News" of that city.

As I have been on the wing ever since we landed in Liverpool, May 22, and have had but little time to write letters, will you permit me through the News to let my friends know something of our journeyings?

Our trip across was delightful and not one of our party of ten were seasick. The sense of freedom and expanse, the feeling of triumph over all difficulties as on the prow we watched the steamer mount the waves was both exhilarating and soul-resting.

Our first stop was in Chester, where we enjoyed a walk on the old Roman wall, then to the quaint old town of Stratford-on-Avon. We stayed over Sunday in the costliest old-fashioned cottage of the Shakespearean period. We enjoyed a service at old Trinity church, visited the house where Shakespeare was born, the vine clad cottage where he wrote a wailing Ann Hathaway, also many other places of interest.

After several days in London, too full of interest to mention in detail, we went to the beautiful city of Hague, all of which we enjoyed, but we were especially charmed with the "Palace in the Woods," where the great Peace Conference was held. Space will not permit us to speak of half the cities we have visited in Switzerland, Italy, Germany, France, etc., but only mention a few of the sights and experiences that have impressed us most.

Shall we ever forget the grand Cathedral at Cologne with its massive towers; the impressive service Sunday, or the wonderful harmony of music, as the great arches gathered and rolled back the sound of anthems; or the church of St. Ursula with the bones of eleven thousand martyred virgins adorning the walls of the church in strange mosaic!

Then the dreamy delightful sail up the Rhine which took nearly two days, passing many old Castles with their legends, Laurel Island, where mermaids are supposed to dwell, (by the way I captured a beautiful mermaid and sent her home on a postal card to Mr. Pearson), the grape vineyards all along the steep banks, "Fair Binger" and so many wonderful scenes, all making a beautiful panorama full of interest. At Heidelberg we visited the great castle on the mountain side which covers acres of ground. As we wandered through the great rooms of the old ruins, and saw so many evidences of ancient splendor and power we exclaimed, "Oh, the history of the past!"

The beautiful falls of the Rhine are only excelled by our own grand Niagara. The Staubbach Falls are the highest in the world and the blue and green lakes of Switzerland and Italy are like a dream of Paradise. We have crossed mountains that took us away up above the clouds, passed through tunnels from one to nine miles in length, and seen beauty and grandeur and glory of mountains and lake scenery that is beyond description. We used up all our adjectives long ago, and with uplifted hands and wide open eyes and mouth have tried to give expression to our wonder, surprise and admiration. Try to imagine a smiling valley filled with beautiful gardens at every artistic shape and color, then the lofty green mountains with dashing cascades of sparkling water, and above and beyond all this the snow clad peaks, and you have a scene no artist can paint.

In southern France and northern Italy, many of the mountains are solid rock, like great giant's castles reaching far above the clouds; many of them were of such peculiar form that we wondered what kind of contortions old Nature could have had to leave such strange and grotesque monuments of stone.

Our great W. C. T. U. World's Convention at Geneva, Switzerland, was a week of profit and delight. Our fellow workers from all over the world were there full of zeal and courage, making us feel more than ever, proud and thankful to belong to this great organization of women called of God to carry on the work of temperance and reform.

Rome, with its catacombs, its ruins, its thrilling history on every street and corner, we can only mention. We found Naples the funniest, dirtiest city full of goats, donkeys, beggars and strange sights, but with the most beautiful surroundings and interesting side trips any city could have.

At Capri we took a small boat in which we were told to lie flat in the bottom as we dashed into the small opening of the charming Blue Grotto, with a big wave chasing after us filling the mouth of the grotto for a moment, but the wonderful beauty of the grotto more than paid us for our venture, and the splash of water that hit our faces as we came out added to the fun and excitement of the trip.

After several hours spent at Pompeii amid the ruins of that pleasure, sin-loving city of the past, we made the long, weary ascent to the top of Mount Vesuvius, first by carriage, and then—oh, the very steep incline, and then—oh, the horror of it!—in chairs each borne on the shoulders of four men, who slipped and plunged in the ashes as they went almost straight up with but little incline, making us feel every moment we were to be toppled over and rolled into the awful below. While gazing into the awful crater the old mountain favored us with a lively eruption which sent us hurrying away with red hot stones and lava flying far above our heads and about us.

We saw the Leaning Tower of Pisa, the wonderful Campo Santo (cemetery) at the beautiful city of Genoa, rode in the fair city of Florence, rode in the gondolas, and fed the great flocks of doves in Saint Mark's Square in Venice, and climbed five hundred steps to the top of the great white marble Cathedral at Milan. The great towers, the flying buttresses, the many beautiful statues and two thousand statues are beautiful enough for the New Jerusalem, the home of the saints. Truly the poet has said:

"'Tis only in the land of fairy dreams
Such marble temples rise, bright in the gleams
Of golden sunshine. Truth has here no replica
What fancy off has pictured in its flights.
And gives substantial form to airy thoughts.
How bright, how beautiful! The towers peer
In snow-capped clouds, while statues crown their heights.
O'er does the night these towers in moonshine Sleep.
Stirring the soul to poetry's delight."

We must pass over many other cities and places of interest, and just say we have reached Paris with all its fashions and whirled, shall spend a few days in Brussels and Antwerp, reaching London by the 26th of July. We hope to take a trip to Scotland and shall sail on the New England, leaving Liverpool the 20th of August.

The old world with its history, its wonderful architecture, its renowned paintings, its great artists and sculptors, its beautiful palaces and all its scenery, has been an experience of constant wonder and delight, but after all we shall be glad to get back to the cozy homes, the Puritan Sundays and the plain English of our dear New England.

We have drunk freely of cold water everywhere and found no need or occasion for the wines or beers which so many Americans even seem to think are a necessity here. We hope to reach our homes well and happy and loyal to all the good teachings we have received in our own "land of the free and home of the brave." ADELAIDE E. PEARSON.

Things Worth Considering.

Making a Gentleman.

There is nothing that improves a boy's character so much as putting him on his honor—trusting to his honor. I have little hope for the boy who is dead to the feeling of honor. The boy who needs to be continually looked after is on the road to ruin. If treating your boy as a gentleman does not make him a gentleman, nothing else will. Let your boy wait upon himself as much as possible. The more he has to depend upon himself, the more manly a little fellow he will show himself. Self-dependence will call out his energies, bring exercise and good health. The wisest charity is to help a boy to help himself.

"What a Boy Knows."

"What a boy knows" is thus summed up by an exchange, the editor of which was evidently, sixty years or more ago, a boy himself. "At 10 years of age a boy thinks his father knows a great deal; at 15 he knows as much as his father; at 20 he knows twice as much; at 30 he is willing to take advice; at 40 he thinks his father knows something after all; at 50 he begins to seek advice; and at 60 after his father is dead, he thinks him the smartest man that ever lived." These estimates are probably given for the encouragement or consolation of parents who are struggling to make obstreperous boys of the know-all age "see things," but the awakening of the boys is postponed to a date so late that the most patient father and long-suffering mother can only sigh in contemplating it.

Love Letter Romance.

Half a century ago a young Englishman, while traveling, met a beautiful girl and promptly fell in love with her. A few days later he returned home and his first act was to write her a love letter. In it he told her that he could not be happy without her and that if she regarded his proposal favorably he would expect a reply by the next mail. To this letter he received no answer, and so disappointed was he that from that time until his death, which occurred recently, he shut himself up in his home and lived like a hermit. Most of his time was spent in reading, and the day after his funeral the heirs began to search the books in his library, for they thought it quite possible that the eccentric old man might have hidden some bank notes in them.

They found none, but in a tattered old pamphlet they found another kind of note, the love letter which was written 50 years ago, and which the writer had forgotten to mail.

Wife Praising.

Praise your wife, man; for pity's sake, praise your wife when she deserves it! You won't injure her any, though it may frighten her some, from its strangeness. If you wish to make her happy, give her a loving word occasionally. If she takes pains to make you something pretty, don't take it with only: "Yes, it is very pretty. Won't you hand me my hat?" It will take you only a moment's time to kiss her and tell her she is the best wife in town. You will find it to be a paying investment—one which will yield you a large return in increased care and willing labor for your comfort. Loving praise will lighten labor wonderfully, and should be freely bestowed.

I called on a friend one day and found her up to her eyes in work. "Oh, dear," she said, "this is one of my bad days; everything goes wrong, and I haven't got a thing done."

"Let me help you," I said. "No, no," she replied, "I'm going to leave everything and rest a while; but I must just wipe up this slop first," pointing to an ugly spot which disfigured the pretty oilcloth.

Just as she stooped to do it her husband came in; he didn't see me, but he went straight to his wife. One quick lift, and he placed her on her feet, and taking the cloth from her hand, wiped up the spot himself.

"There, busy-bee," he said, "you have done enough to-day. You tired yourself all out getting my favorite dinner. Now I think I'll leave the rest till tomorrow."

I spoke to him then and he sat with me a few minutes before going down town. Shortly after, my friend came in looking very much amused.

"I guess I was in the dumps," she said, laughing, "for I've finished; and everything has gone swimmingly since E— came in."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors have tried to cure it with various local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure, have induced the people to believe that Catarrh was incurable. It is now known that Catarrh is a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, a new discovery by Dr. J. C. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Sent for circulars and testimonials.

Sleeplessness.

You can't sleep in the calmest and stillest night, if your stomach is weak, circulation poor, and digestion bad. Hood's Sarsaparilla strengthens the stomach, improves the circulation, perfects digestion, and brings about that condition in which sleep is regular and refreshing. It does not do this in a day, but it does it in less than thousands of cases.

OXFORD.

An Ideal Picnic Day.

Saturday, an ideal picnic day! Over fifty of the T. A. Roberts Post and Corps were royally entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn Spurr at East Otisfield. Tables were set in the grove near by and fairly groined under the load of good things to eat. A local band discoursed sweet music, which so inspired the dancers old and young that a score or more betook themselves to a house cleared for the purpose and danced and danced and danced till the old grew young again. With many thanks to the genial host and hostess the party left at the sundown voting the day one of the brightest in the calendar of 1903.

A Birthday Party.

The grounds of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Robinson presented an attractive picture Monday afternoon, the event being in honor of their little daughter Leoline, who had reached her seventh birthday, and had invited a number of her young friends to be present at her lawn party. A large table was spread beneath a beautiful arch of ferns from the center of which was suspended a pink gift basket, with ribbons of the same color descending to the side of each plate.

The table was decorated with elegant vases of pink and white flowers and two large bouquets of fragrant water lilies. In the center of the table was a lovely birthday cake with Leoline's name upon it.

After all had partaken of the bounteous supper of sandwiches, fruit, cakes, cocoa and ice cream, they were requested to pull the pink ribbon from the basket. They each did so and were surprised and delighted to find attached to it a present, a token of love from their little hostess.

The afternoon was passed with music and merry games, and the little ones with thanks for pleasure, and happy goodnight returned to their homes.

The following are the names of the guests:

The inspiration of such singing is not to be measured or expressed by mere words. A very beautiful and appropriate duet was also sung by Mrs. Andrews and Mr. Stetson, and the hour for closing came all too soon.
